

SMITH JULY 5, 1988

Workmen dismantled yesterday part of a big cigarette billboard (arrowed) overlooking Railway Square displaying a close-up picture of Paul Hogan. The Advertising Standards Council ruled on May 2 that Hogan, the television personality, had a major appeal to children and should be excluded from all cigarette advertising.

Anyhow, down came the sign

The part of the billboard dismantled.